Make Him Quit Crew

THE jinx that has been pursuing the Columbia navy got in another blow when the crews took to the Hudson yesterday.

Francis M. Simonds, bow oar and a veteran of three years, became afficted, it was announced, with "parental objection" and had to resign his seat. Simonds was captain of last season's football team, and in view of the fact that his father and uncle were great football and crew men his withdrawal was taken with surprise. Five men have been forced to vacate the bow position in the last year. Trowbridge now has essayed to

EIGHT SHELLS OUT ON CHOPPY HUDSON

Columbia Varsity Ships Half Boatload of Water on Its First Real Workout.

Eight shells-the largest flotilla in many years-made up the Columbia with Coveleskie pitching. This opens up two avenues of thought—whether Coveleskie no longer is a Giant killer. varsity boat. Trowbridge, a rangy or whether there no longer are any youth from last year's freshman boat, took his place.

The day was raw and the river choppy, but the varsity managed to row two miles before shipping much water. By the time Capt. Bratton got his crew back to the float the shell was half filled. The men had the nerve taking task of tossing the shell overhead and allowing the icy water to run all over them. Polo is described as the real aristocrat of America's sports, and "it requires brain, nerve, muscle, agility, horseman-ship and something else too." Same way with jackstraws, except the horse-manship.

Frank Moran saw himself and Will-ard fighting on the screen. The great advantage of this method is that the blows fall much more lightly. Coach Rice to don his rowing togs and go out in a single shell. Fred Plaisted did the same and accompanied the freshmeets have been "run off." A wrestling meet couldn't be and the only thing about a swimming meet that could be is did the same and accompanied the freshman crews.

True to their old faith, the varsity men went out in the shell Edwin Gould. The old shell was used by the 1914 crew, which won at Poushkeepsle for the first time in nineteen years, and was revived for last fall, when it was the medium of the victory against Yale at New Haven. The junior varsity went out in the shell Morton G. Bogue, a craft for which the varsity has a pet aversion, as this shell never has won a race. The first two varsity boatings:
